Dear Parishioners,

"What must I do to inherit eternal life?" This was the question the rich man asked Jesus. Perhaps this is our question to Jesus as well. The hard truth is there is nothing that we can do to inherit eternal life. No one can buy his way into heaven. All the good works that one performs does not guarantee everlasting life. Jesus mentions, "For human beings it is impossible, but not for God. All things are possible for God." We human beings are finite, limited, and powerless. We see this so clearly in the human act of love and forgiveness.

Being human we love and forgive only so much. We place limits on our love and forgiveness. We only love our family and friends. We only forgive someone if he apologizes. Do we love and forgive the person who offends and hurts us? Do we love the person we find difficult to like or rubs us the wrong way. Human love is conditional. We only love the person if he meets our expectations. Do we continue to love the person who betrays us? How often are we willing to forgive? Do we forgive once or twice? What about after the third time? We probably write the person off after the first time.

The love of God is limitless. It is inexhaustible. It does not discriminate. God loves the whole world, the righteous and the sinner. God pours out his eternal love for us through his son Jesus. God the Father proves his love for us by sacrificing his only, beloved Son on the cross. God the Father allowed his Son to experience the pain and agony of the cross. This was the will of God. God permitted his innocent Son to die a horrific death. In this selfless and self-giving act, God forgives us.

He continues to forgive us not seven times, but seventy times seven times which means forever. God never stops forgiving us. God never stops loving us despite what we do or not do. God loves and forgives us despite our faults and weaknesses. Even if we turn our backs and walk away, God the Father, like a sentinel, waits for us on the horizon of life. He waits for our return so that he can wrap us with his love and forgiveness.

Thus, there is nothing that we human beings can do. What Jesus did we could not and would not do. God has done everything for us. God has done the impossible. He has saved us from our sins by the suffering and death of his Son Jesus. All that God asks of us is to have faith and trust in him and to listen to his Son. What a small thing to do given what God has done.

The Feast of All Souls

"It is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead."

November is traditionally the month set aside by our Church to commemorate and celebrate the memories of our departed loved ones. We will have a special Wall of Remembrance again this year, where we post the names of those who have died during the past 12 months. We invite you to submit the names of your loved ones who have died from November of last year until now. They will surround us with their love and prayers as we remember them each time we enter the Church. Their names will also be written on a scroll and given a place of honor beneath the paschal candle in the sanctuary. To ensure correct spelling, please e-mail the names of those who've died during the past year to Sr. Patricia at possullivan3@juno.com or fax, mail or drop them by the rectory by Oct. 23.

As always, you are invited to bring photos and memorial cards of your loved ones who have died recently or earlier than the past year to Our Lady's shrine in the church. We will have a Memorial Book there in which you may inscribe their names. Our annual All Souls Mass will be at 7:30 pm on November 2. Everyone is invited.

Caring for Creation and the Poor

We all know that planet is in trouble. It may seem that that the problem is too big for us to make a difference, but every little thing we do can help. Our commitment to protect the planet does not have to be a dramatic or painful experience, even the small things we do can make a difference.

Our family makes a conscious choice to recycle whenever possible. Sometimes it means taking a little extra time to separate the trash. Sometimes it means having to walk across the schoolyard to find a recycle bin. Our society puts a high premium on our time, but in the long run, it is a good investment of a few minutes a day. We have also replaced our front lawn with landscaping that requires less water. We not only save water but money as well. Some of our neighbors are considering doing the same, so the benefit may continue to grow. We have also made sure to fix the leaky faucets and toilets.

We also try to conserve electricity throughout the house. We turn off the lights when leaving a room. We turn off the television when no one is watching it (even if we'll be back to watch later). We also use Energy Star rated products whenever possible. We've also replaced our sandwich bags and water bottles with reusable plastic containers. We also try to use our reusable grocery bags whenever we can.

These are just a few little things that we do. Hopefully, most of you are already doing them, too. As we contemplate the St. Francis Pledge, let's all look for new ways to live healthy and sustainable lives. Please register your pledge at www.catholicclimatecovenant.org The Salazar Family

Farm Fresh to You

If you'd appreciate farm fresh, organic produce which hasn't been shipped from Chile or Mexico, but don't have time to go to a Farmers' Market, go to www.farmfresh toyou.com. This website is for a family farm in Vacaville which puts together an assortment of seasonal fruits and vegetables and delivers them to your door weekly or every 2, 3 or 4 weeks. The regular box costs $31.50 and smaller boxes are also available. You'd be eliminating the pollution caused by transportation and giving your family and yourself truly healthy food!

Living the Liturgy

The Rich Young Man

In today's first reading, wisdom is compared to a woman (sophia in Greek is a feminine noun), who is priceless because countless riches come along with her. Those of us who have gained wisdom through our life's experiences might agree – it is wisdom which has enabled us to learn from what we've endured. Without wisdom, we probably wouldn't know how to deal with all the good things God has given us; we might squander them foolishly.

The gospel story of the rich young man is familiar to us and follows Jesus' declaration that the kingdom of God belongs to children; if we don't accept the kingdom of God like a child, we will not enter it. The lives of wealthy people often have little in common with the vulnerability of a child and, sometimes, give little evidence of wisdom. The real danger in wealth is that it cuts people off from other people and often even from God, since they may feel that they don't need anyone or anything. The CEO's of the failing auto companies flew to their congressional testimony, each in his private jet! Wendell Potter, the former Cigna health insurance executive, was visiting his family in Tennessee and went to a free health fair; the sight of thousands of uninsured people changed his life. When interviewed, he explains that, as a well-paid executive, it was easy to be consumed with making his bonuses and to forget that those whose claims he refused to cover were human beings.

At Jesus' time, wealth was seen as a sign that one was blessed by God and poverty was a sign of one's sinfulness and/or God's displeasure. But Jesus looks at the man lovingly and invites him to sell what he has, give it to the poor and he will have treasure in heaven. "Then come follow me." The man turns away sad. "How hard it is for those who have wealth to enter the kingdom of God!" Jesus exclaims. "It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for one who is rich to enter the kingdom of God." (The "eye of a needle" was a very low gate in Jerusalem.) So the disciples are amazed. Jesus is turning the prevailing view of wealth as a blessing on its head. Yet Jesus declares that all things are possible with God, meaning that the wealthy can be saved. But he adds that anyone who gives up everything considered important will receive "a hundred times more now...with persecutions and eternal life."

How about us? What is our attitude towards our material possessions? Peace, S. Sheral
