Dear Friends,

I sit here on our deck, sipping mango tea. The sun is shining; the sky is blue and my white butterfly is circling around my head. Today we celebrate and receive the Body and Blood of Christ, as Gene did every day. I ask him to help me write this letter. Almost immediately, the thought comes to me: "Remember the poem you wrote many years ago; repeat it once more" --- and so I will:

THE BODY AND BLOOD OF CHRIST

We your family of believers, gather this day to worship and praise You, to thank You and pray. As we listen to Your Word, Holy Spirit inspire; our longing hearts, please set on fire.

Transform our gifts of bread and wine, that they become Your Body and Blood Divine. We offer ourselves; make us one with You in this sacrifice --- so old, yet ever new.

Together we proclaim Jesus' death till His return, In the breaking of bread, our hearts within us burn.

In unison, our voices we raise with joyful hymns of love and praise.

We give You thanks for all You do, as we become Christ's Body too. All our sorrows and fears, our sins You bear --- One Body, One Life, One Spirit we share.

The moment comes when bread and wine are now Your Body and Blood Divine. We approach Your table with emotions of awe --- Your Chosen people, whose presence You draw.

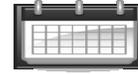

We take and eat Your Body, Lord, and drink Your Cup of Blood out-poured. Our souls You fill with peace and love; our spirit soars to heaven above.

As we journey forth from this holy place, help us bring to others Your loving embrace.

May God continue to bless each of you,

Anna May

2nd Collection

Today we support the Holy Father in his charitable works. The Peter's Pence Collection is taken up worldwide to support the most disadvantaged: victims of war, oppression, and natural disasters and others in need of emergency assistance. Pope Benedict XVI has said, "It is necessary above all that every person be motivated by the authentic spirit of peace" (Homily, January 1, 2011). Cast the peace of Christ upon the world—please be generous in today's Collection.

Dearest St. Roberts Parishioners,

Over the last 2 1/2 years since my daughter Anne was diagnosed with breast cancer. I received great love and support from all of you and I will always be grateful.

Having been gone almost a year when she passed away in April, I was overwhelmed by the love and support I received. Your prayers helped me through those dark days immediately following her passing, when I myself couldn't pray and realized that God was allowing you to do what I couldn't at the time, I was just so very sad. Your kind words and deeds continue today and help heal a mothers broken heart, which is now healing one moment at a time.

On behalf of her husband and 3 children, I thank you for all the great blessings you sent their way. They were all very touched by your love.

I will never forget the wonderful people of St. Roberts. You have touched my life more than you could possibly understand.

God Bless all of you,

Kathy Hanley

From the desk of the Pastor Parish Pastoral Council

First of all, I would like to thank Fr. Paul O'Dell for his ministry to our parish for the past five years. His collaboration with the Religious Education program and his generous service to the homebound parishioners in particular has certainly enriched our community. Let us wish him well as he moves on to his new assignment as Parochial Vicar of All Souls Church in South San Francisco.

Let us continue our discussion on the Parish Pastoral Council. What are the steps for forming a Parish Pastoral Council? If a pastor has had a "pastoral council" that was merely the meeting of the heads of organizations or has arrived at a parish where no pastoral council exists, he may wish to start a council like the one that we are going to describe here.

The first step in the formation of a pastoral council is the pastor's desire to have one. This desire flourishes in the pastor's humble admission that he needs help in the form of practical wisdom and in maintaining the larger picture if he is to serve God's People well. Once he determines that the parish will be better served by his forming a pastoral council, he may look at the Archdiocesan guidelines which contain the contents of the Church's teaching on the subject and the Office of Parish Life in the Archdiocesan Pastoral Center.

When the pastor has decided to form a pastoral council, he should involve the parish staff. Specifically, he should convey to them his motive for wanting a council, the way in which the council differs from the pastoral staff, and the benefits he thinks the council can offer the staff.

Once the pastor has decided to form a council and once the staff understands its relationship to the future council, he will then want to establish a Steering Committee, which will recommend to the pastor its practical conclusions about the council.

The tasks of the Steering Committee are fourfold:

- To define the purpose of the future pastoral council.
- To inform parishioners about the purpose.
- To invite parishioners to participate in the council.
- To oversee the selection of council members.

To achieve the first task, the Steering Committee must prepare a statement of the council's purpose, a constitution or foundational document about the council. This document should include: the purpose of the council, Church teaching about councils, frequency and length of meetings, and the selection process for membership.

The second and third tasks of the Steering Committee focus on the parishioners whom they educate about the purpose of the council and whom they invite to join. Let it be said at the start that there are many ways of accomplishing these tasks; what follows are merely recommendations. In a series of open meetings, the pastor and the Steering Committee state the motive for the council, its purpose, issues it will be invited to address, possible items parishioners wish investigated, and an invitation to parishioners to participate in the council.

The fourth and final task of the Steering Committee is the overseeing of the selection of new council members. Once, however, there has been clarity about the purpose of a council, and the gifts members need, the selection of members becomes an easier task.

Three ways of selecting council members have appeared in recent literature about the subject: the "shared wisdom" model, "election committee" model, "combined" model.

Shared Wisdom Model: After parishioners learn about the council ministry and if they feel attracted to it, they nominate themselves.

Election Committee Model: The Steering Committee screens nominees and proposes candidates for general election to the pastor.

Combined Model: this approach includes the open meetings of the "shared wisdom" model and a small group to screen and select council members from the "election committee" model.
